DISCUSSION regarding the district's Smart Start plan operations and risk level

Emergency Operations Center Manager Abner Hoage attended the virtual meeting to provide an update on the community's risk level. Six positive COVID cases had been confirmed in Ketchikan the previous day, with eight cases the day before that, said Mr. Hoage. The community's positivity rate that day of 2.77 percent was one of the indicators putting the community risk level solidly in the Level 3 range, he said. Realistically, the community risk level would not drop to Level 2 before late in the following week, or even after, he added. For those reasons, EOC Manager Hoage recommended that the district extend the current Smart Start risk level through at least the next week.

Acting Superintendent Katie Parrott also spoke about factors that weigh into her recommendation, including recent cases at Ketchikan High School and Schoenbar Middle School in the past several days. The district worked with public health to identify close contacts and quarantine those persons; and to determine if the schools could be kept open, she said. She recommended the Board extend the medium risk level operations through the entirety of next week.

Ms. Parrott added that principals and staff optimally need a two-day window to make the school operation change go smoothly, but definitely not less than 24 hours.

For approximately 40 minutes, Board members discussed various situations which might factor into their decision on this issue, with Mr. Hoage and Ms. Parrott providing additional information. These topics included: the Schoenbar/Kayhi cases; compliance with quarantine; the EOC's recommended protocols for businesses during a high risk level; the impact of the 50 percent and 100 percent capacity levels on safety at the schools, and students' mental health and educational experience; Ketchikan's COVID positivity rate levels and CDCs recommendations; how vaccinations might impact the community and district risk levels; and the importance of staff following protocols.

Motion to continue at the current level for another week and that the Board reconvene again next week for further consideration

Discussion

Board Member Diane Gubatayao asked whether another special meeting needed to be scheduled next week if a regular meeting was already scheduled. She spoke to why she wasn't in favor of continuing the 50/50 model.

Mr. Hodne commented on the necessity for everyone to follow protocols that had been in place and for kids to be in school. He said he would vote to move the schools back into 100 percent capacity.

Mr. Hodne said he appreciated the Board's debate. He asked for Ms. Parrott to stress the importance of following protocols by students and staff.
